CPA Plane Forced Down At Penticton

PENTICTON (CP)—A twin-engine Convair aircraft with 16 persons on board was forced to turn back shortly after taking off from the airport here Monday after trouble developed in one of its engines.

The westbound CPA aircraft made a normal landing on one engine and none of the 13 passengers and three crew members was injured.

The ground saw puffs of smoke coming out of the left engine.

The pilot feathered the propeller, turned around and landed. The passengers were accommodated in Penticton until the regular 8:20 p.m. flight.

The Convair had come from Calgary and was bound for Vancouver.

Air line officials said the trouble was located in the engine but declined to say what it was.

Budget Deficit Almost Record

NO BLAME ATTACHED BY JURY FOR 8-DEATH SKAHA CRASH

PENTICTON (CP)—A coroner's jury Monday said it had not enough evidence to attach blame for a two-aircraft collision over nearby Skaha Lake April 27 in which eight persons were killed.

However it did recommend that at the earliest possible date air radio control be instituted for all takeoffs and landings at the Penticton airport.

Killed in the collision were R. G. Parley, 48, his wife Margaret, 49, their children Rebecca, 17, Lindsay, 8, Richard, 15, Ernest Hanson, 19, and a friend Earl Sibley, 29, and Roman Edward Lesko, of Edmonton.

Sibley was pilot of a twin-engine Aero Commander and Lesko was alone in a single-engine Cessna.

The jury took 50 minutes to return with its verdict. It had heard 11 witnesses before coroner Dr. Bill White.

A report from a federal department of transport investigating team read at the inquest, said the left propeller of the Aero Commander hit the upper right wing, the left wing and the cabin of the Cessna. At the same instant the cabin and one wing of the Cessna hit the left side of the cabin of the Aero Commander.

Ald. F. D. Stuart of Penticton, who has a home on Skaha Lake Road, said he saw the two aircraft just before the collision. He said he heard a crash and looked up. The Cessna appeared to have hit the rear section of the Aero Commander. Ald. Stuart was one of the first persons out on the lake after the crash and helped pick up the bodies of Mr. and Mrs. Parley.

John R. MacDonald of Calgary, chief pilot of Pacific Petroleum Ltd., said Sibley was a former RCAF flying officer and co-pilot for Canadian Pacific Airlines. He said he was a competent pilot who knew the area he was flying over.

Alabama National Guard Called Up By JFK Order

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy today ordered the Alabama national guard into federal military service.

Kennedy directed Defense Secretary McNamara to put in active service "any or all of the units of the army national guard and of the air national guard of the state" for an indefinite period.

The president acted because, he said, his commands to Governor George C. Wallace against "unlawful obstructions of justice" had not been obeyed.

In a proclamation, Kennedy had commanded Wallace not to bar entry of two young Negroes—Vivian Malone and James Hood—to the University of Alabama at Tuscaloosa and Wallace immediately defied him.

About 2,800 Alabama members of the 31st Division already are in summer training at Fort McClellan, Ala., about 100 miles from Tuscaloosa. Presumably all will go into active service, as ordered by Kennedy. The order could apply also to 50 guardsmen Wallace placed on the Tuscaloosa campus.

In barring Miss Vivian Malone and James Hood, both 20, Wallace violated a sweeping injunction issued by a federal judge at Birmingham June 5.

Wallace kept a pledge made during his election campaign for governor to bar the door to Negroes as he solemnly read the statement. The two students were seated in an automobile outside the auditorium where students register.

They arrived in a three-car procession while two national guard helicopters hovered over the campus.

Gordon's White Paper Sets Loss In Past Fiscal Year

OTTAWA (CP)—A federal budget deficit of $700,000,000 for last fiscal year—second largest in Canada's peacetime history—was reported Tuesday by Finance Minister Gordon.

It was the sixth in a string of consecutive annual deficits rung up by the former Conservative government. This period, which produced a total of $2,901,500,000 in deficits, started April 1, 1957, just 2½ months before the Conservatives took office, and ended last March 31, three weeks before the Liberals returned to government.

The preliminary accounts for the 1962-63 year ended March 31 were shown in a white paper tabled in the Commons by Mr. Gordon as a prelude to his first budget speech Thursday.

The deficit was $139,000,000 larger than the $570,000,000 forecast last Oct. 22 by the Conservative finance minister, George Nowlan, when he revised predictions made in the budget speech of his predecessor, Donald Fleming, on April 10 last year.

Mr. Fleming had budgeted for a $745,000,000 deficit, and the white paper showed that despite last year's austerity program the deficit fell only $36,000,000 short of his forecast.

It compared with the peacetime record deficit of $791,000,000 the previous year.

Rate Of Spending Pushed Higher By Heavy Increases In Costs

Heavy increases in costs of technical training aid, hospital insurance and public debt charges helped push budgetary spending to a record high $6,584,000,000, up one per cent from $6,320,600,000. This was despite a big drop of $266,000,000 in payments to the provinces under the new federal-provincial tax arrangement.

Budgetary revenues, buoyed by the now-defunct import surcharges, advanced 2.6 per cent to a record $5,876,100,000, up $146,000,000 from the $5,730,000,000 collected in 1961-62. Personal and corporate income tax collections, recorded as declining by $66,700,000, a cut a little increased by $250,000,000. But $317,000,000 of this tax money was collected on behalf of the provinces and didn't show in federal accounts.

Despite the economy steps taken last June 24 in the foreign exchange crisis, budgetary spending was $85,100,000 higher than the revised forecast by Mr. Nowlan last October and ran $60,100,000 above the forecast of Mr. Fleming's budget 14 months ago.

There were increases of $171,300,000 for technical and vocational training payments to the provinces, $79,000,000 in the cost of carrying the public debt, $52,900,000 in hospital insurance payments and $20,800,000 in shipbuilding subsidies.

Budgetary revenues fell $53,000,000 short of Mr. Nowlan's October forecast and topped 900,000 short of Mr. Nowlan's Mr. Fleming's prediction by $36,100,000.

The year's accounts are still subject to adjustment. Old age pensions are not included in the report's budgetary accounts, since the pension fund which finances the $65 monthly payments to all at age 70 is handled separately.

PENSION PAYMENTS UP—Pension payments jumped by $108,600,000 to $733,700,000, reflecting a pension increase from $53 which took effect Feb. 1, 1962. Pension fund receipts of the special taxes earmarked for this purpose rose by $47,100,000 to $691,100,000, leaving a $42,600,000 deficit that was covered by a loan from the general treasury.

foreign exchange reserves $483,600,000 higher than they had been at the beginning, including $300,000,000 in borrowings from the International Monetary Fund.

Tories Met Cash Pledge

OTTAWA (CP)—The former Conservative government more than met its pledge to chop 1962-63 defence expenditures by $86,000,000 in last summer's austerity program.

It cut defence spending by $102,802,175 — to $1,572,900,000 for the year ended March 31 compared with the original estimate of $1,675,702,175 and last summer's revised estimate of $1,590,000,000.

(Estimated 1963-64 defence expenditures are $1,628,833,536.) The budget while paper shows 1962-63 defence expenditures—about 24 per cent of all federal spending—were $53,200,000 less than in the previous fiscal year.

Canadian Enters Drama Of "The Profumo Affair"

LONDON (CP)—A Canadian who was in the RCAF until 1954 issued a writ for damages against Christine Keeler today, claiming the red-haired party girl who caused the downfall of war minister John Profumo had wrongly fired him as her business manager.

Robin Drury, 29, added the writ came suddenly last Saturday.

"I intend to fight," he said. "It has left me high and dry and I shall find it difficult to get other work."

Drury was at 21-year-old Christine's side during last week's sensational disclosures that she doubled as the mistress of Profumo and a Soviet naval attaché whom many diplomats presume to be a spy.

He held her hand, too, during the Old Bailey trial which saw another of her lovers, Lucky Gordon, a 31-year-old Jamaican Negro, jailed for three years for attacking her.

As her business manager he would be on a good thing, British newspapers have paid heavily for her copious memoirs.

And a nightclub—the Astor—has offered her £2,000 ($6,000) to appear for a month.

The Astor has no connection with Lord Astor, at whose stately home Christine first met Profumo. She was nude at the time, enjoying a midnight swim.

Former manager Drury was an airframe technician at the RCAF Station at Trenton, Ont., earning $3.53 and hour when he inherited a fortune from his grandmother, but he had to live in England to collect it.

His mother, Mrs. W. E. Scully of Toronto, said her son inherited a £40,000 ($112,000) first legacy when he was 21 and got a second when he was 25. He gets the third and last legacy when he is 30. The total fortune was not disclosed.

A cabinet meeting to consider the security side of the Profumo scandal was expected Wednesday. Lord Privy Seal Edward Heath cancelled a visit to Oslo so he could be on hand.

Storms Strike Midriff Of U.S.

CHICAGO (AP)—Stormy weather pounded broad areas in the midsection of the United States Monday night as cold air from Canada swept eastward from the plains and headed into the Atlantic coast.

Violent wind, rain and hail storms and a few tornadoes lashed areas in Indiana, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois causing widespread property damage. At least two deaths were attributed to the stormy weather. Several persons suffered minor injuries.

None of the four patrolmen riding in the two cars was injured in the shooting which came in the wake of an anti-segregation demonstration Monday night by Negroes who said they came to pray at city jail for those arrested earlier.

Two persons were taken to hospital after the night encounter between police and Negroes.

They are worried about a warning issued by the censorship department ordering them to cover up and keep their shakes "respectable."

The chief censor, Abdel Rehim Sourour, opened the campaign with a circular letter sent to each dancer outlining the official reform plan.

Sourour's letter said there is to be no more hussling, no more belly or bosom shaking, no more lying down on the floor and executing quivering or shivering motions; no more suggestive movements. And—breast, back and abdomen are to be covered — the lower part of the dance costume is to be a full skirt with no side or front openings.

Seven of the victims were crushed beneath the truck, pinned against piles of camping gear, outdoor motors, tents, sleeping bags. Bodies of the other five were scattered nearby.

At least 28 more were hurt. The truck stalled going up a steep grade, then tumbled backward as the brakes failed. It plunged over an embankment and overturned.

Bullets Hit Police Cars

DANVILLE, Ga. (AP)—Bullets struck two police cars cruising the streets of this racially troubled city early today as state police were directed to make an hour-hour assessment of the tense situation.

Liberals May Gain Support From Ranks Of Opposition

OTTAWA (CP)—An opposition MP has pledged publicly not to vote to overthrow the minority government but top officials of his party cast doubt on a report that four others are privately resolved also to give the Liberals voting support on non-confidence motions.

Frank Howard (NDP—Skeena) said in a report to his constituents that "I do not intend to participate in moving or voting for any so-called want of confidence motions."

"This course of action is to apply during the next two sessions of this parliament."

An informant said four other

New Democrats—while not saying so publicly—have made a similar decision.

CALL IDEA ABSURD—However, New Democratic Party Leader T. C. Douglas said in Edmonton that the report was "absurd on the face of it." He said NDP members will act as a group in the House and any suggestions of a pledge from five of the members "is just somebody's pipe dream."

Deputy Leader Douglas Fisher branded the report "completely haywire, silly speculation and insupportable."

The effect of five opposition MPs casting their votes with the Liberals on a non-confidence motion would be to ensure the government of a majority. The Liberals hold 129 of the Commons' 265 seats, the Conservatives 95, Social Credit 23 and New Democrats 17. There is one independent Social Credit MP.

Search Fails To Find Girl

MISSION (CP)—Police with tracking dogs and a weary father who searched for 23 hours had failed today to turn up any trace of 12-year-old blonde Alice Mathies.

The girl has been missing since Sunday night when she left the home of a married sister to walk the mile and a half to her home.

Tom Mathies said today he fears his child may have been abducted and refused to give up the hunt after police called off their search Monday.

Even he stopped searching to return to his job as a boiler engineer.

"She was taken in a car somewhere," the father said. "Somebody forced her. She would never accept a ride from a stranger. She knows better."

Australian Ambassador Sir Geoffrey Blainey said the charges against Morrison were "completely untrue."

A Soviet foreign ministry statement charged that Morrison was an active spy operating in Australia.

Diplomatic relations with Russia were resumed in March 1960.

Later he got a phone call asking him to go to a Montreal restaurant where he was invited to join the FLQ. He said he met Schoeters, Hudon, Villeneuve, Groulx and Plote in the restaurant. He was asked whether he was married, owned a car or weapons and was "ready to die for the cause."

He said he and another person, Alain Gabriel, were called to Villeneuve's house March 7, and prepared two Molotov cocktails. He said he and Villeneuve planted the incendiaries at an armory while Gabriel painted the letters "FLQ" on a wall.

GETS PROTECTION Schoeters gave testimony after his lawyer, Gilles Duguay, asked that it be made clear to him he would have court protection. Coroner Marcel Trahan said this means nothing he said under oath could be used against him provided he tells the truth.

Schoeters said the first FLQ bomb was used against a railway line in the ville of Lemieux. "Three of us went there in a car. The problem was that nobody had ever done this operation but all the same it was necessary to see if it would work.

"It was a coincidence that the prime minister of Canada passed over the track. It happened that way."

The CNR's main Montreal-Halifax line was dynamited near Lemieux 60 miles southwest of Quebec City, April 1. A 25-inch section was damaged but it was replaced a few hours before a train carrying former prime minister Diefenbaker during the election campaign passed over it.

DENY PATROLS MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet defence ministry's organ Krasnaya Zvezda (Red Star) today denied Russian submarines are patrolling the Mediterranean Sea. The newspaper said charges published in Greece that Soviet nuclear subs had penetrated the Mediterranean were designed to divert attention from American Polaris craft sent to that area last month.

State Secretary Pickersall announced the committee of the 14-member Commons committee on defence made up of 13 Liberals, eight Conservatives, two Social Crediters and two New Democrats. Former Conservative defence minister Douglas Harkness, who resigned over the nuclear arms controversy, was not nominated to the committee by his party.

George Nowlan, member for Digby-Annapolis-Kings and a former Conservative finance minister, and Bert Lebow, Social Credit MP for Carleton Place, suggested the work of the industry department could have been handled by the trade department.

Mr. Nowlan said the new body may be cumbersome, confusing and unnecessary.

Liberal backbenchers sat silently on the government side of the Commons as opposition MPs voiced their doubts about the usefulness of the new department which will come under the wing of Defence Production Minister Drury.

Spokesmen for all opposition parties said they would reserve judgment until they see the details of the structure and powers of the new department in the legislation to be presented at the end of the present debate.

ANNOUNCE PROGRAM Monday's sitting was the 49th day in the Liberals' 60 days of decision. It also heard:

1. Labor Minister MacEachan announce a nine-point employment and manpower development program, a package plan aimed at reducing unemployment, promoting technical training and curbing winter-time joblessness.

2. Fisheries Minister Robichaud warn that criticism of Canada's delegation to a conference on a new north Pacific fishing treaty is undermining the efforts of the negotiating team to reach agreement with

Quebec Liberation Front Appears Curtailed Now

It may be significant that since the arrest of some fifteen people in Montreal, there has been no repetition of the bombing outrages which so plagued Quebec during the past few weeks. This ceasing of the bombings suggests that perhaps the Front de Liberation Quebecois is a small group of murderous fanatics using the separatist movement as an excuse for acts of violence. Had the arrested persons been only part of a larger group, surely the bombing outrages would have continued.

The police have succeeded in rounding up the majority of the group, it should not take much more to put the F.L.Q. out of business.

Bombing outrages and threats on the scale unleashed in Quebec are foreign to the nature of this country. If they should be allowed to continue, the situation could only become one of national disgrace.

It is generally realized that the F.L.Q. extremists do not represent the real separatist movement within Quebec. But those shades of opinion which do, running all the way from moderate to extreme, should pause a moment to reflect on the trends toward violence which can be generated once the ideas of nationalist emotion are turned loose.

English-speaking Canadians have been subjected in recent months to all sorts of interpretations of the desire of French-speaking Canadians to either be cut in as equal partners in Confederation or cut loose from it altogether. Some of the demands have been couched in almost insulting terms. Some have been issued in ultimatum form. Others have been moderate and reasonable in tone.

Just now the rest of Canada seems to be in a mood almost of eagerness to placate Quebec and remove whatever grievances that do exist.

It will be most unfortunate if this eagerness is mistaken by some French-speaking Canadians to signal a readiness on the part of English-speaking Canadians to hand over their own birthright, lock, stock and barrel, to keep peace in the family.

Moderation and compromise can be the only tolerable ingredients of whatever is done to settle the current threat to Canadian unity.

The Great Outdoors

Thousands of Canadians spend all or part of the summer somewhere outside the limits of a city. In some parts of the country many have a summer cottage, but here in the Okanagan most of us are close enough to the great wilderness to not need that luxury. Still, most people in the Okanagan "take to the hills" very frequently and, so, we must appreciate that in doing so, there are hazards to be faced.

Always, of course, there's water. If the stream or lake water is used for drinking purposes, it should be tested by health authorities every year before it forms the drinking supply. Every year when the spring thaw washes the surface waters into the well, spring, stream or lake, there may be pollution that could bring disease. Until the tests have been made and the water pronounced safe by the health authorities, water for the table or cooking should be boiled for about five minutes. If the boiled water has a flat taste, it can be aerated by pouring it from one vessel to another to make it palatable.

There are commercial water purifiers that can be bought at the drug store. Some of the javel-water products can be used—the directions are given on the labels of those suitable.

There's another water hazard that is much greater than the contamination danger—that's the danger of drowning. Against it are the precautions that can be taken by people with common sense. For anyone who spends summers or vacations where water is the chief attraction, the ability to swim is essential. It is also important that a knowledge of artificial respiration be included in the list of skills. When a person is brought unconscious from the water, it does not necessarily mean that he is dead. Life has been brought back to apparently drowned victims who have been in the water for as much as half an hour. Perseverance with efforts in artificial respiration have brought success when continued for many hours, as much as eight hours being recorded. If after an hour's work, there is no sign of life but still there is no definite sign of death, the administering of artificial respiration should be continued. Only when rigor mortis sets in or if a doctor decides that the victim is dead, should efforts be discontinued.

Many drownings take place when people cease to use common sense in boats. The unskilled canoeist who takes that always-difficult-to-handle craft on a threatening day, or when someone starts horseplay in a small boat and tips the vessel, for instance. When a nonswimmer suddenly steps into a deep hole in the lake and panics, he may easily drown. Life preservers should be worn whenever small boats are used and the lifejacket should be one of those approved by the federal Department of Transport.

There are other, perhaps lesser, hazards in the outdoors. There's poison ivy, probably growing close to a favorite spot under the trees. Everyone should learn to recognize this plant—there's a useful little jungle to help—"Leaflets three, let it be." Three leaflets on a single stem, greenish white berries growing in clusters, the whole plant being quite attractive but it can spoil a vacation if any part of the skin comes in contact with any part of the plant. If there is any suspicion of having walked through or touched leaves or stem, quick washing with strong household soap or detergent will help to remove the poisonous oil that causes the trouble. Most people boast that they are immune to poison ivy—they may be, or may be lucky, for many years there comes the day and then they may prove as susceptible as everyone else!

Rabies is another danger to worry about in some parts of Canada since for several years there have been outbreaks among wild animals that have passed the disease on to domestic species. Dogs are particularly susceptible and if the family dog and cat are sharing the country vacation, they should both be inoculated against rabies. The dog, whose tendency is to chase everything, should be kept under control. Children should be cautioned about touching strange animals, dead or skunks, both animals being particularly alive.

The garbage should not be left where it can attract raccoons or be susceptible to rabies.

Prepare for anything in the way of accidents: have a well-stocked first aid kit, with additional items such as sharp small wirecutters with which the barbs of fish hooks could be snipped off if they have entered the flesh; suntan lotion, sunglasses and anything that will protect the human skin from being burned, or ease it after the sun has taken its toll.

Milk could be the cause of undulant fever and other ills if it is not pasteurized. If it is not bought from a commercial dairy that pasteurizes its products, it can be made safe by heating the milk to simmering point—not boiling—and then cooling quickly. Powdered milk, either skim or whole, is a boon in the country, not requiring refrigeration and easily made up in the amounts required each time of using.

Citizens Go Out On Patrol To Curb Juvenile Crime

DETROIT (AP)—When juvenile crime reports increased sharply in the Detroit suburb of Highland Park the citizens decided to do more than talk about it. They organized the citizens' night patrol.

At 8:30 p.m., a dozen men and women stand in the city parking lot, chatting in the misty dark. On one side, city hall stands darkened, closed for hours. From the other side comes light from the city garage's door.

The women go inside and the men get into five cars, which drove off in different directions. The citizens' night patrol is on duty.

One of the drivers is Dave Jones, a 45-year-old man with two small children at home. It's Friday night and he has worked five eight-hour days driving a garbage truck. But instead of watching television this night, he prowls the alleys and back streets of Highland Park.

Jones and the other volunteers, two or three to a car, are watching for trouble—scuffles, groups of boys, anything suspicious.

Highland Park's 107-officer police force can manage to keep only five patrol cars on duty during these hours, 8:30 to midnight, a period of high incidence of juvenile crime.

DOUBLED WATCH
"With us out in five cars, the police have twice as many eyes," says Bob Battersby, 51, in charge of the radio in the car. And this is the whole function of the night patrol.

These are the rules: Stay in the car at all times; bring no weapon; if street gangs are sighted, observe only; if the gang appears headed for trouble, call for police and continue to observe; do not leave the car.

A soft rain starts as the cars cruise slowly through an alley. "Car one to base," says Battersby into the hand mike.

"Come in car one," says the woman's voice. She is Kay Simpson, housewife. Hers is the responsibility for calling police if need be. The city administrative cars are on a different radio channel from the police. She and Mrs. Betty Dobriniec, a water department employee who has a 16-year-old son, share this duty.

"Just reporting our position," says Battersby. "Nothing yet." The night stays quiet.

FORMED COMMITTEE
Highland Park is small-townish enough so that when Mayor Mark Storen walks into the cafe, the waitress greets him with "Hi, mayor." Storen is a 52-year-old general contractor who has been mayor four years.

Last winter, he appointed a 25-member youth committee, which came up with the night patrol idea.

"I couldn't find another city doing this, so we had to work out the details ourselves. We had the five cars with radios just locked up in the garage nights. This patrol costs nothing but gasoline and we get that at 12 cents a gallon with our tax exemption."

Storen sees the juvenile crime spiral as mostly a social problem. Detective Capt. William Stephens sees it as a geographic problem and quotes figures that most juveniles arrested are Detroit residents.

One of the night patrol regulars, John Smith, sees it as a racial problem. He has lived all his 49 years in the Detroit area, and has been city health inspector since 1917.

INFLUX OF NEGROES
He says the Negro population of Highland Park has grown rapidly to more than 20 per cent. Mayor Storen's estimate is 23 per cent but both agree it is increasing. Slum clearance in Detroit, for urban renewal and freeway construction, has displaced hundreds.

Smith blames this new element for 95 per cent of the juvenile crime increase.

If Negroes helped create the problem, Negroes are helping fight it. About one-third of the youth committee is Negro. So is Dave Jones.

Back on duty after coffee, the monotony of fences, alleys, incinerators and trash cans continues gliding by the car window in the rain. The headlights fall on 10 Negro boys, walking together.

Battersby radios the location to the dispatcher and says: "They're just walking. We'll check back."

NOTICE CAR
Jones parks and kills the lights. One of the boys across the street notices. One by one, each boy looks over his shoulder at the car.

This close, the city shield on the door can be seen. And the car aerial is bigger than one for an ordinary radio.

Two of the boys leave the pack, crossing the street. Two others go into a pool hall. Half the rest enter a drug store. Suddenly the street is nearly empty.

Battersby radios: "Car one to base. Those 10 broke up. They know we're out tonight."

PUBLICITY HELPS
As Jones drives to the hospital through the rain, Battersby chatters.

"I think publicizing this has kept a lot of kids off the street in itself. You see a bunch, they see you, you drive around the block and they're gone."

"We're only out weekends now. When school lets out, the mayor's thinking of every night. No shortage of volunteers."

OTTAWA REPORT

Fish Truly Tasty Dish

By PATRICK NICHOLSON

It isn't true what the critics say about Canadian food. There really is a delicious and distinctive Canadian dish. This secret I have discovered from the Indians of Northern Ontario.

These adroit "first Canadians" are the key to that never, never lakeland where every fisherman's dream can come true. An Indian guide knows where the fish are, tells the visitor how to catch them, and does everything short of snaggling the fish on the hook. Then on some picturesque rocky shore, the guide will fillet the fish with skillful dexterity, quickly handle a blazing fire on a rocky grate and prepare to cook the catch into a tasty "shore dinner."

Let the holidaymaker catch whatever fish he will, in whatever water he chooses, accompanied by whatever guide he picks. But the catch will be fried in a sizzling sea of lard in a standard mammoth frypan with a uniformity that varies not one little from lake to lake or from tribe to tribe. This lack of variety in the cooking by those careless sages of Indian blood and French name would shock their namesakes in that old land of blue ribbon chefs.

CATER TO PALEFACES

The famed lament of the northern fisherman expressed his eternal hope for variety even from this tasty French-fried fish.

"I spend my summers in a province-wide search for a different method of cooking fish."

"I dream of a way I would really like."

"That's not the same as I cook my Pike."

Northern Ontario offers the Tired American Businessman everything that his doctor orders: fresh air, moderate exercise, deep sleep, and "getting away from it all" with no newspapers, no telephone, no mail, no late late movie—often not even a clock.

That is why the famous Gateways to the North see a constant stream of cars with U.S. license plates. For other visitors who come by plane or train, these gateways are convenient points of departure, and the greatest of these is Sudbury. Within easy access are many, many lakes and rivers, unspoiled—except with fish—where the T.A.B. really gets "recreation" and the Canadian vacationer has fun.

It was on such a lake that I found the great Canadian dish. To avoid spoiling the fun of the hunt for others, I shall call it "The Lake of Ten Thousand Islands." Its tales and myths range in size from a jagged rockpoint measured in feet to a gently rolling smooth rock shelf of miles; each host in its friendly way to blueberry and orchard, to moss, jackpaws and birch, which take root in the improbable rocks of past Falls, wadded together in tiny crevices.

APPETIZING ODDS

Against a background by Nature to which Glorious Technicolor and A. V. Jackson jointly could do scant justice, Indian guides were preparing the traditional fish-fry last weekend. But other odds revealed to curious me that, tasty though it is, the Indians had tried of the Palefaces' favorite fry. From a mammoth deep saucepan, filled with fish steaming in a scant panish liquid came that appetizing sizzle.

"It's fish stew," admitted the master-chef. "White man like fish, but Indian like fish stew."

Sampling revealed that, what boudibaise is to the Frenchman and to his tourist trade, what suppa dipe is to the Italian and from muto to the Spaniard, so is fish stew to the Indian. I have never enjoyed its like except in that northern Ontario hidden paradise, so aptly named in Indian: "The Secret Place."

Tourists and restaurant operators and nationalists can no longer deplore that there is no other than Habitant Pea Soup. There is Indian fish stew.

Defence Minister Sits In Hot Seat

OTTAWA (CP) — Associate Defence Minister Lucien Carlin had some anxious moments during the Battle of the Atlantic, when he was an anti-submarine control officer aboard RCN corvettes.

Now, 20 years later, he occupies a military hot seat of a different kind. But the stocky, reserved lawyer from Sorel, Que., shows no signs of nervousness.

The only member of the Pearson cabinet born in the United States, and at 44 one of the youngest, he assumes a portfolio with a short, turbulent history and undefined duties.

Moreover, he likely will be a prime target of Conservative opposition members who were stung by his personal attacks on the then prime minister Diefenbaker in the Commons last year, and his pleas for a better deal from the government for French-Canadians.

UNCERTAIN POST
Of the four previous associate ministers of defence two resigned from the cabinet amid noisy policy disagreements, and one was defeated in a general election six weeks after taking office. The fourth eventually became a full-fledged defence minister but lost his seat at the next election.

One of them, Paul Hellyer, made a comeback and now is defence minister.

Mr. Carlin in an interview indicated he is not losing any sleep thinking about the fate of his predecessors.

He said he looks forward to playing a full role as a minister at both the policy and administrative levels. "By order-in-council this position (associate minister) is given exactly the same responsibility and authority as that of the minister of defence."

Soft-spoken and easy-going, Mr. Carlin has been a full-time politician almost since he entered Parliament Oct. 6, 1952, winning a by-election in Richelieu-Verchères. He has been re-elected handsomely ever since in the industrial-rural riding just east of Montreal Island.

FAMILY SEAT
The same riding and its old constituency of Richelieu were held by his uncle, P. J. A. Carlin, from 1911 until his death in 1940.

The elder Carlin was a member of Liberal cabinets for 13 years, holding in turn the portfolios of marine and fisheries, public works, and transport. He resigned from the cabinet in 1942 over the conscription issue.

The younger Carlin was born in Providence, R.I., March 1, 1919. His father, Octave, was a building contractor who had moved to Rhode Island from the Sorel area. His father moved back in 1933 to Sorel where the father became general manager of a foundry.

Mr. Carlin became bilingual at an early age by switching from English to French schools and back. He graduated in 1941 from Loyola College (now Loyola University), an English-speaking Jesuit institution in Montreal, and joined the navy.

WARTIME SERVICE
He graduated as a naval officer at King's Naval College in Halifax in 1943 and served aboard HMCS Sudbury V, a minesweeper covering Halifax harbor, and on the corvette Picot and Owen Sound that escorted Atlantic convoys.

He was aboard the Owen Sound when she and HMCS Ste. Croix combined to sink a German supply submarine off the Bay of Biscay.

"To the best of my recollection it was in 1944," he said. "This was the first time in nearly 20 years that I have talked about it."

Demobilized in the fall of 1945, he worked at the foundry with his father, then in 1947 entered the University of Montreal's law faculty. He graduated in 1950 and practised in Sorel for about three years before moving to Ottawa.

WANTS WATERWAY
In Parliament, his chief interests have been international relations and transport. He has long advocated the deepening of the Richelieu canal and the Champlain waterway to boost barge traffic between Montreal and New York.

A feasibility survey of this waterway proposal now is being made by the International Joint Commission. Mr. Carlin said he has the impression this survey has been slow-paced so far.

On the international front, he was a delegate to the United Nations General Assembly and the UN economic and social committee in the mid-1950s. He was parliamentary assistant to Prime Minister Pearson, who then was external affairs minister, in 1956-57.

On bilingualism, he said voluntary French courses are to be started for English-speaking officials in the defence department. The departments of northern affairs and mines began similar courses this spring.

Other measure: would it be taken, he said, but more study of the situation was required.

Mr. Carlin was married in 1950 to Marcelle Pettitclerc, a niece of the Simard brothers who built up shipyards and allied industries in Sorel, and they have three sons and one daughter. A lieutenant—commander in the naval reserve, he is an ardent yachtsman and golfer.

ANN LANDERS

Children Stay Home

Dear Ann Landers, My brother and his wife have an only child who is 10 years old. Going on 16—if you know what I mean. They take the girl everywhere, claiming she is very mature and fits in with adults beautifully. She is mature for her age, Ann, but she is still a 10-year-old child.

Some of their friends have simply stopped inviting them over because they insist on bringing the girl. It is not so easy for a relative, however. Last week we had a dinner party. Since it was on a school night, we felt certain they'd leave the youngster at home, but they did not. The evening was ruined by the child's presence. Her mother insisted she give several readings, and the guests were bored stiff.

After they left we decided this was the last straw. Shall we not invite them in the future and risk a breach in the family? Or shall we tell them they cannot bring the girl to our adult parties?—ENOUGH IS ENOUGH

Dear Enough: TELL THEM— which is what you should have done ages ago. Perhaps these parents don't realize that adults resent the intrusion of a 10-year-old. Moreover it's not good for the child. These overly mature kids can turn out to be obnoxious little characters if they've been the Over age 50? How about YOUR life insurance.

The 50's bring new dimensions to life and to a man's need for life insurance. The children have grown up, retirement is not far away and the tax people are getting interested in your estate.

You need a lifetime income for your wife—a requirement that is emphasized when you consider life expectancy tables and the good chance most wives have of outliving their husbands.

A surprising number of people have taxable estates these days, thanks to inflated values. Estate taxes could be a thorny problem for your heirs and may require the sale of irreplaceable assets.

Age 65 for most men brings retirement—years that can be a rich and satisfying experience if you have enough income.

The ideal solution to all these problems is Life Insurance, guaranteeing immediate cash or lifetime income depending on the need. Talk to the Man from Manufacturers. You'll find him especially helpful in measuring your present insurance against these "new dimensions" after 50.

Opening lead—five of spades.

The declarer starts with a great advantage over the defenders because he can see, as soon as dummy comes down, the exact strength or weakness of his cause. The defenders have no such advantage, since either can see it a portion of the declarer's resources and a portion of their own.

As a consequence, the declarer sometimes achieves by deception a victory he is not entitled to on the strict merits of the cards. Here is such a case.

South was in three notrump and West led a spade. East playing the jack and South the ace. Of course, South could have won the trick with the queen instead of the ace but he realized that the contract was in some danger and that there was a chance of escaping defeat by winning the first trick with the ace.

At trick two he played a club to the king and led the queen of diamonds and finessed. West won with the king and, having noted earlier that the jack of spades had forced the ace, returned a low spade to his partner's (assumed) queen.

South's deceptive play now became exposed when he won the trick in dummy with the nine and cashed two more clubs and four diamonds to fulfill the contract.

Whether or not West should have fallen into the trap is a moot point, but there can be no doubt about the correctness of South's opening play. Declarer knew that if he took the first trick with the queen and later lost a diamond finesse that West would very likely shift his attack to hearts and thus defeat him.

He hoped, by winning with the ace, to persuade West that East had the queen of spades, and thus induce a spade continuation if it turned out that West had the king of diamonds.

He was not particularly concerned with the spade trick he might cost himself if later events proved that East had the king of diamonds, since in that case he would be practically sure to make at least nine tricks.

FOR TOMORROW
This day's planetary influences suggest that you concentrate on routine matters and postpone action on new enterprises for 24 hours. Be cautious in financial matters and, where necessary, revise your budget.

FOR THE BIRTHDAY
If tomorrow is your birthday, you may prepare for a year of achievement, even though it may be slow in coming—providing that you keep plugging toward worthwhile goals and take advantage of every available opportunity to advance them. Expect nothing on the proverbial silver platter. The latter part of this month, as well as September and December, also next January's promise pleasant and financial developments, but, generally speaking, it would events.

You may get a big lift in September and/or December, when superiors and/or partners, who have your interests at heart, show their appreciation with some unexpected recognition for your efforts. Except for a brief period in early November, you should have smooth sailing in personal relationships and don't be surprised if romance becomes a high spot in your life during August, September and/or December. Ivanov Mystery Clouds UK Affair

LONDON (AP)—Capt. Yuri Ivanov, a Soviet spy, was a Russian—many charged and strong.

He has been described as a Russian playboy, a diplomat, a troublemaker — and a Soviet spy. Officially, he served as an assistant naval attaché at the Soviet embassy in London.

Like four other men, Ivanov was charged with spying for the British. He was charged with spying for the British. He was charged with spying for the British. He was charged with spying for the British.

Voice Of Women Conference Asks "Bicultural" Legislation

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Voice of Women called upon the federal government Sunday night to enact legislation to ease tensions between French- and English-speaking Canadians.

In business-packed sessions of a two-day annual meeting here, members of the organization dedicated to disarmament and preventing equipping of Canadian forces with nuclear arms.

In another resolution, the 125 delegates called upon the membership to take part in a cultural and news exchange to further English-French understanding and co-operation.

The type of legislation expected from the federal government was not spelled out but during debate on the cultural exchange resolution, delegates heard a plea for understanding from a French-speaking member.

Miss Jeanne Du Val, of Quebec, said that if conditions as they now exist between the two cultures continue in four years "there will be no Canada as we know it today."

She said many who can read English newspapers "know you are not unfriendly." But she said there are many in French-Canada who do not read English.

Weed Killers "Dangerous"

VANCOUVER (CP)—Some weed killers sold in supermarkets are so toxic that a child in a city pool could absorb a fatal dose by drinking a bowl of water.

The decision to ask for restrictions on poisons was made at the group's annual meeting in Nanaimo last week.

Mr. Baker said the association would be falling in line with the public if it didn't make people aware of the potential danger of poisons and pesticides.

Association registrar Douglas Denholm of North Vancouver said all poisons have been given a toxicity rating. Under the proposed legislation conditions of sale would be attached to each of the poisons, depending on its potential danger.

"The most toxic would be limited to drugstores and purchasers would have to sign a poison register."

Elected vice-presidents were Mrs. Chaput-Rolland Beatrice Bridgen of Winnipeg, Mrs. Muriel Duckworth of Halifax, Mrs. Aileen Powers of Edmonton and Mrs. Mary Welwood of Vancouver.

Mrs. Margaret Ashdown of Toronto was elected treasurer.

Iraq Resumes Kurdish Conflict

BAGHDAD, Iraq (Reuters)—Iraq today announced it had resumed the 30-year-old war with the Kurds, who inhabit a jagged mountain area bordering Turkey and Iraq.

The government ordered the Kurds to lay down their arms within 24 hours or "pay the consequences."

After the overthrow of the Kassim regime in February, the new government agreed to a decentralization of power for the Kurds and negotiations began.

But the Kurds sent envoys to the Iraqi government asking that a state of emergency be declared in the Kurdish areas.

The Iraqi government said the "Red Mullah" Mustafa Barzani, a Kurdish leader, had been killed in a battle against Iraqi forces.

A statement by the National Council of the Revolutionary Command, Iraq, today said that the Kurds had been killed in a battle against Iraqi forces.

"Beginning today, we are clearing the northern area of the remnants of Barzani and the northern area is considered operational."

wanted by the government and had refused to hand them over. The Kurds who inhabit a jagged mountain area bordering Turkey and Iraq long have demanded greater independence of the Iraqi central government, and especially a state of "Kurdistan."

Pittsburg Signs Kimberley Youth

KIMBERLEY (CP)—An 18-year-old Kimberley catcher who was discovered to be a professional baseball player, has signed a contract with the Pittsburgh Pirates of the National League.

Pittsburgh scout Bate Barteris of Seattle said Alan Joseph Fazio has been signed for a "modest" bonus. He will report to the Pirates' Kingston, Tenn., farm club in the Appalachian League.

Barteris said he discovered Fazio last summer when he came here to look at another prospect.

The youngster, who graduated from high school Friday, has played senior ball for three years.

Egypt Accused Of Rocket Plan To Exterminate Europe Cities

BASEL, Switzerland (Reuters)—An Austrian nuclear scientist had a court here to say that a German working in Egypt planned to lead rockets capable of destroying Israel and other European cities.

The scientist, Dr. Otto Juchacz, is one of two alleged Israeli agents on trial here on charges of attempting to convert a German rocket expert working for Egypt.

Juchacz told the court he was invited in the autumn of 1961 to work in Egypt in the physical and technical sector.

He quit his job in the summer of 1962 when he decided to return to Austria.

Under questioning by the court president Juchacz said Dr. Wolfgang Pflüger, head of a group of German scientists working for Egypt, obtained documents on and exportation from Britain and Canada to be used to lead rockets.

Juchacz said he was accused he would receive 10 per cent of the $400,000 which represented the cost of the radioactive material to be supplied to Egypt.

Juchacz said he came to the conclusion that the Egyptian project went far beyond defence requirements and "was a threat not only to Israel but to vari-
